How to remove autorun.in from USB Drive
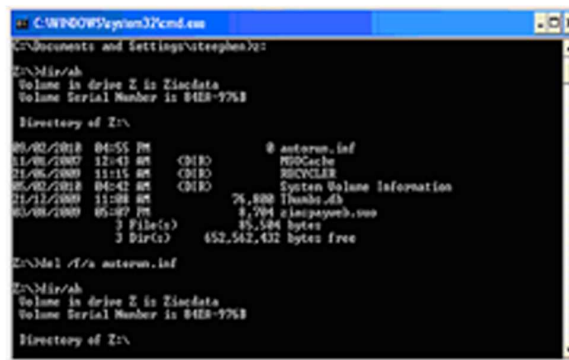

Guidelines to Hardware Engineer

Worms spreads by creating a copy of it and starts by autorun.inf files. It is essential to remove the malicious and autorun.inf files not only from computers but also from the source, and that is the USB Drive.   Precise security has created a procedure to delete the malicious files on infected drives.

PROCEDURE:
1. While the computer is still off;
2. Plug in the USB Drive
3. Insert the Windows XP CD-ROM into the   CD-ROM drive. It must be the bootable Windows XP Installer
4. Start the computer from the CD-ROM drive. It will start Windows Setup screen
5. When the "Welcome to Setup" prompt appears. Press "R" to start the Recovery Console
6. If asked "Which Window installation would you like to logon to" select the number. Type "1? Then enter, if only one installation of Windows is present
7. Enter the administrator password, press Enter
8. It will bring you to command prompt, C:\Windows>
9. Proceed with the following command:
    Type d: (This is the drive letter of USB. It can be e: or f: defending on how many hard disk or cd drive is installed)
    Type attrib -h -r -s autorun.inf
    Type "edit autorun.inf" it will open DOS Editor and display contents as follows

[autorun]
open=file.exe
shell\Open\Command=file.exe shell\open\Default=1
shell\Explore\Command=file.exe shell\Autoplay\command=file.exe

10. Exit DOS Editor and return to command prompt, D:\>
11. Delete the file that was called to open on DOS Editor
